

The diagram illustrates the experimental design. It starts with a 'Stimulus' box containing a word and a picture. An arrow points from this box to a 'Response' box, which contains a word and a picture. From the 'Response' box, an arrow points to a 'Rating' box, which contains a word and a picture. A feedback loop arrow points from the 'Rating' box back to the 'Response' box. A comparison box labeled 'Compare' is positioned between the 'Response' and 'Rating' boxes, with arrows pointing to both. The 'Compare' box also has an arrow pointing to a 'Decision' box, which contains a word and a picture. The 'Decision' box has an arrow pointing back to the 'Response' box. The 'Rating' box has an arrow pointing to a 'Feedback' box, which contains a word and a picture. The 'Feedback' box has an arrow pointing back to the 'Rating' box. The 'Decision' box has an arrow pointing to a 'Final Decision' box, which contains a word and a picture. The 'Final Decision' box has an arrow pointing back to the 'Decision' box.

Salutatory

By FRANCES HOPKINS

Members of the faculty, parents, and friends,
Welcome:

Tonight it seems entirely fitting that you, who have guided, loved, and inspired us, should be here. Tonight of all nights you should be with us, for it is a turning point in our lives. It is a beginning and an ending: the beginning of a new life, far more vast in extent than we have ever known before; the end of a joyful, happy school life. This evening we are facing life. We look forth with the eagerness, the hopefulness of youth.

For three years we of the class of 1931 have worked together, meeting success with pleasure and failure with courage. This evening we experience a great happiness, for at least we are able to show you what we have accomplished.

This is the culmination of the many days in school — hard days to be sure, but eventful days.

So to you, who are in a large measure responsible for our success, in the name of the class of 1931, I extend "A hearty welcome!"

Class History

SCENE: Summer home.

TIME: Night of Commencement.

CHARACTERS:

Guy McMichael	Muriel Stapp
Albert Graf	Janet Jackson
Robert Frash	Catherine McColl
Richard Gardner	Bernice Koehler
Leonard Radecki	Muriel Levy
Marshall Hewitt	Margaret Gish

(Music and sounds of dancing are heard within the house. Janet and Al are seated on swing.)

Janet: Isn't it grand and cool out here?

Al: You bet! It scarcely seems possible that we've graduated, does it? (The rest enter, couple by couple laughing).

M. Stapp: (Walking to chair.) How do you like being a graduate? I feel sorta lost!

Guy: So far so good.

Marshall: (To Pete.) Who'd ever think to see you now that you were the little girl in half socks that walked in here three years ago?

Pete: I can't say you were any "Beau Ideal" in our Soph stunt night.

Cate: But wasn't Turnie cute in the Sophomore play?

Leonard: That was "Do You Believe in Luck?", wasn't it?

Dick: Remember our "Soph Spring Sprint?" We actually stayed out till 11:00 o'clock.

Bernice: Yes, that was the time Milt Ries was President and led the grand march.

Bob: How beautiful thou lookest, my fair lady.

Cate: Flatterer!

M. Levy: Beautiful lady! What does that remind you of? (Tune of "Beautiful Lady" heard. Hoppy, Wardell, Donna Belle).

Al: (Stumbling).

Pete: You're not as graceful as those dancers. You look more like Gilbert Horst when he fell down at our Junior Dance.

Jan: I'll never forget decorating for that "Goblins' Gambol". We had orange and black streamers every place there was room for any.

Guy: I can't say I care for that minuet or whatever it is they're playing. Let's get some jazz.

Bernie: How funny! "Jazz and Minuet". I guess Rae Hargrave put over the jazz part in our Junior play.

Dick: Yes, and Bob here was the handsome hero.

Bob: I'd almost forgotten.

Marsh (Acting silly) and now Ladies and Gentlemen—

M. Levy: Say, you can't make any better speech than George Turner could in the play, "The Youngest".

Sappy: Doesn't it seem ages ago that we gave our Junior-Senior Ex?

Leonard: Talking about making speeches — I think Tom Lizzi is the one for that. He certainly kept everyone roaring at our Senior Prom. That was a wonderful time.

M. Stapp: Didn't we have a gorgeous time, tho?

M. Levy: Bernice, that's the prettiest necklace you have on.

Bernice: Do you like it? Thanks. I bought that at Senior Wyman's Day. Which all goes to show that we really can be business like.

Marshall: Why, of course, with Guy as our President and such splendid co-operation from the remainder of the class—

M. Levy: (Interrupting) Well, now, we've heard enough. We'll have to admit, tho, that we were pretty successful.

Pete: Speaking of the cute bracelet, look at the darling one Cate has. Did you get it for a graduation present? Santa Claus certainly was good to you.

Cate: You don't know your history. This isn't the time of year for Santa. Anyway, there's something more in Christmass than that.

Guy: I guess we all found that out in "Unto the Least of These."

Jan: That play gave me the queerest feeling. It just left me rather weak.

Al: I'll bet you didn't feel half as weak as I did after our Senior April Shower Dance.

Dick: Already that seems like a long time ago and yet it was only a little over a month ago.

Guy: Yes, it was only thirty-eight days ago.

Leonard: "Only 38"! That was our Senior play. That was the last "big thing" our class put over.

Marshall: We not only displayed talent in that but I think we showed some in our last assembly — our Senior Musicales.

Valedictory

By KATHERINE CRUMPACKER

On this night as we are reaching the highest goal in our school life, it is only natural that we should look back over the past few years which can now be seen so plainly while the future is yet hidden. They have been pleasant years. We have worked hard, played hard — and we have gained much. We have spent a great deal of energy seeking for the things we want; often we have failed, but each small trouble or failure has been the spur to lead us on to greater success. Tonight our feeling of happiness in our success thus far overshadows the memories of the various struggles that we met along the way.

Now, as we look at all the familiar faces of our friends here, it is hard to think of the parting we must make. The past is secure and happy. We are inexperienced, but there must be opportunities ahead. We have lived in a period of great changes and new opportunities. Our earliest remembrances are of the Great War, and it is in the unsettled world since then that we have grown up. Nothing has long remained still. We believe that it is the duty of those who have grown up with these developments to go out and lend at least their youthful enthusiasm toward aiding these conditions in the world. So we will go forth to work and play, as we have worked and played here; with the strong hope and firm resolve that you, our parents, our teachers, and our friends, shall someday be proud of the class of nineteen hundred and thirty-one. It is with this resolve that we now bid farewell to you, our classmates and our friends.

Patterns

By STUART TOMBER

With some solemnity
The figures stand here,
Wrapt in the eternal movement of time,
Cloaked in the intricate forms of patterns,
As an ocean lies on its bed, in space,
 Outward to the sand, lapping waters:
 Inward, moving to an exotic melody,
 Weaving within and to the center,
 Back and forth.

As such these figures weave in the mind
Patterns,
Threads from the past to the future,
Between the impotence of the old
And the untried energies of the young.
All in one in this pattern:
All patterns in one.
Thus to the face of destiny.

Not noble symbols merely, these patterns,
But rather each strand,
Some part of our life:
No longer the weaver,
But the pattern alive.
Yours the intricate, ours the simple:
Yours the fadeless, ours to be dyed:
Yet all formed in that same movement of humanity
To the melody of entwining notes,
 Back to the stinging arrows of sadness,
 To the gleaming stabs of gladness,
 And then to the forces in us
 Mounting to tomorrow—
Gone back to the other end, in another dawn.

In these patterns with their rhythms,
Then do we see our life.

EDITORIAL

Enthusiasm The graduating class looks forward with faith in an ideal, with hope of its attainment and with enthusiasm for the work by which it may be attained. Just how much depends upon this attitude toward the means of attainment is seldom appreciated. Folks say that it is natural for youth to be enthusiastic, and it is well to remember that truly natural attitudes are generally wise.

Until life presents responsibility as an incentive to endeavor, enthusiasm serves as a motivating force. Perhaps this earlier force is the more powerful since responsibility is less inspirational and the experience by which it is accompanied is often characterized by the results of disillusionment. For disillusionment must come. Not all of us can set the world afire with our successes. Yet so long the glamor and the joy of endeavor remain, nothing seems impossible, and much is made possible by the attitude.

Then the very enthusiasm which attends the youth commencing life goes far in obtaining for him the attention which later may only be commanded by knowledge and experience. For the world is interested in the man who is interested in the world. So let us show the world what enthusiasm we have. Unless youth aimed to accomplish all, age could accomplish little.

Helen June Huston Helen June Huston, honor student, Girl Reserve and Camp Fire leader, Sunday School teacher, and active participant in school affairs has been taken from our midst. Coming suddenly as her death does, our school has been shocked by the tragedy. Helen would have graduated this June, and we all have predicted for her a very happy life. We shall miss her greatly, yet we may think of her good sportsmanship and fine example.

Success What is success? The graduating class has heard much of success. Success has been upheld as the attainment of that far wish each individual strives, yet is this success? In the first place, each individual strives for something different. It is well to hitch one's wagon to a star as the proverb states. Yet not all of us will reach that star, much as we may desire to. Then too, some do not aim to pluck the cherries highest on the tree. That too, is well, for often those which grow lower on the tree are just as sweet — frequently sweeter.

Yet may we say that those who aim high and succeed half-way are failures, while those who aim half-way are successes? One has attained that for which he strove; the other has not. Yet both have attained the same reward. May we not say that both have achieved success when they have become worthy members of society and have contributed to the welfare of others? Let us in this light consider success, and success will be ours. Everyone may become a useful member of society; some will contribute more than others, for not all of us may become exactly what we wish to be. Nevertheless, if such be the case, each of us will be a success.

Marshall Hewitt	Margaret Gish

All sit reminiscencing.

Guy: Imagine it! Eddy Meinzinger and Chuck Eger were brought in the other day by policeman Francis Cass. They are being tried by Judge Herman Hersh for parking cars on side roads at too late an hour, and for giving the milk wagons too much competition.

Muriel: Yes! What do you think of this? The other day when I was up in the business district I heard shouts of "extra!", "extra!". I immediately bought a paper and there on the front page was Sophia Katz, an astounding success as "the human fly", climbing Wrigley Building with a wad of gum in her mouth. Be careful, Sophia, don't get stuck!

Bob Frash: Listen to this: Al Graf is a street car conductor. He's captain of the street car baseball team. The members of the first team are William Ackerman, Karl Berkheiser, Ben Rosplochowski, Gerald Hagopian, Steve Ciesielski, Chester Zabik, Thurman Dice, and Jerome Vogel.

Bernice: Who would ever believe that Dan Crumpacker would be starring as a hero in some of the well-known productions?

Janet: Do you know who is taking Dorothy Dix's place now? Esther Bays. I'm sure she writes from experience. Ames Tempelton and Rose Buzolitz have formed a blue team and sing in a New York cabaret.

Margaret: Among the happy marriages of our classmates, but not at all surprising, is that of Trenton Murphy and Renato Weissbrodt. Out at St. Marys are two very trustworthy janitors, John Fomenko and Paul Carrico. I hear that Katherine Crumpacker and Frances Hopkins are famous models in a New York style show.

Marshall: Keep still a minute, and give somebody else a chance. Donald Heyde found a flaw in the Einstein theory. Some elephants are well off, now that John Cummins is an elephant tender. Ruth Stebbins is kneading dough in Dorothy Spry's cream-puff parlor.

Across the street is John Rupel's barber shop. When anyone gets through with these two establishments they are ready for Harry Poulin. South Bend's most outstanding undertaker.

Leonard: Here is Earl Perkins and Fred Wharton pushing banana wagons, and Rose Jacobs is cooking in a mining camp in Alaska. Can you imagine it! Bob Frash is at the head of the soup line in the Latin Quarter in Paris.

Marshall: Did you know that Lawrence Deal is just a gigolo, and James Banacka has become almost as popular in the musical line as Rudy Valee.

Richard: Hear this! Everett Jones, a famous deep sea diver! Goodness! Naomi Swem and Wilbur Hoover are making things hot for Al Capone on the South Side.

Guy: The paragon of Grace — Ferdinand Nabicht! Ferdinand is the director of a group of futuristic dancers consisting of Mary Hezler, Mary Kellogg, Mary Wolfe, Mary Vrient, Mary Koechel, Mary Helen Lewis, Marie Eubank, Marie Saltzgober, Martha Elick, Martha Bourgon, Marigrace Turner, and Martha Shaffer. And listen; Victoria DeFries is an assistant in Bill Bakers Beauty Shop, and across the street Dan Youngerman is a peanut vender. Near by Eleanor Peden runs a restaurant with Harry Solomon as the manager.

Janet: I saw in the paper the other night that Clem Korpall is singing in his first opera. He is following in the footsteps of Caruso. John Lipke and Ralph Cripe have become scientists and Ruth Flowers aids them by making discoveries of new bacteria.

Muriel: Ethel Levenson has the record for growing wonderful black tresses in six months time and Gerald Land has become the typing champion. Success to you, Antone! Antone Brazo is a big executive in a Pin Factory of which Oliver Chayie is president.

Al: I saw Leo McKee running an elevator in the Michigan State Pen, when I visited it this summer, and last summer while I was in the South Seas, I saw Edward Purzycki and John Graybill dive for pennies. Good old Heinie! My old school friend Henry Feferman has discovered all the beauty secrets and now holds the world-renown position as Edna Wallace Hopper. He still looks 16.

Catherine: This summer when I went to Hollywood, I met Bernice Koehler. She told me that she and Gladys Mitchell were vieing to dethrone Greta Garbo. Good luck, girls! Genevieve Meyer is teaching kindergarten and her best girl friend, Dorothea Winther has become the first woman president of the United States.

Janet: Wilmot Brown, so I hear, is a ditch digger, and Ray McClary carries water for him. Cedric Mast is a bell-hop in a Lakeville hotel.

Margaret: When I was at the Library the other day, I found a book named "How to Hold Your Husband" by Elizabeth Rough, and while visiting Osceola, I went through the Osceola Tech. Of all surprises, this was the greatest! Charles Logsdon is principal.

Bernice: Although Peter Nemeth, Jr. said he was going to be an undertaker, we see him traveling all over the world collecting Shredded Wheat Boxes. Joe Ettl is earning a fortune showing people how to cure cauliflower-ears in ten lessons, and Ruth Christman has taken Miss Weber's place in the alma mater.

Leonard: While at a talkie the other evening, I was surprised to see the pictures of Beatrice Fischer and Ruth Fishman. They have just completed a roller skating tour of the United States, and in the very next picture Clayton Johnson with Alden Kline, is to wrestle for the flea weight wrestling championship of Lakeville. To climax this surprising news reel, I next saw pictures of Mildred Nash and Artemis Pappas, old classmates, receiving cup for tying in a beauty contest with Robert Feldman, officiating as judge. The very last picture was that of fair Stephanie Pierce, the first woman jockey.

Marshall: I've been looking up some of these old school friends, and among the first I read about were Richard Irvin and LaVern Mahoney — gentlemen of leisure. In the dramatic world, I found Rose Szabo and Oscar Janovsky booked in China for "Abie's Irish Rose." At the Salvation Army Meeting held on Main and Washington, I saw Eleanor Alspaugh who shakes a mean tambourine, and Robert Nowicke, still beating the bass drum.

Catherine: In last night's paper I read that Benjamin Slade is a music teacher in Kokomo. His sweet ways have made a great hit with his pupils. Also, I noticed that Thomas Carlile is a famous Photographer of bathing beauties at Atlantic City. Emery Urbanski, who has achieved world wide fame as a motorist, drove him down. Atlantic City makes me remember that Fred Shanley is an outstanding designer of brick walls and board-walks.

Margaret: I hear that Erma Rinehart, Grace Roush, and Genevieve Scameheorne are selling stickless gum on the street in Atlantic City. Near the city, we find Charles Hagenbuch, a "son of the soil."

Catherine: Speaking of newspapers, I read about Charles Borowski catching fish in the city reservoir to keep them from clogging the city mains. In a small item, I also saw that Charles Kile has become a chemist in Edwin Shultz's Pickle Factory. While driving to the Pickle Factory, Vail Deale smashed his 11th electric car.

Marshall: Punkin Center has produced some famous athletes. Paul Palmer has given the United States fame by breaking eleven records in the Olympic Meets. Punkin Center can expect more of these records because Florence Lundstrom and Catherine Marger are physical director in Punkin High School. Frank Altman is in charge of the dog-pound there.

Bernice: Funeral services of Roland Seguin were held last Friday; poor Roland died of sleeping sickness. The minister officiating was Rev. Marquis Menzie. This might not have happened if he had had such nurses as Lucile Hicks, Gertrude Hoffman, and Ruth Heston, who are head nurses at Healthwin.

Muriel: Evelyn McCauslin maintains a bureau of information for Notre Dame students, while Irma Sule has become a permanent taxi driver between the city and Notre Dame.

Robert: Jack Rankin is a fur trader in the north woods. Virginia White is in Alaska broadcasting over a station H-A-M- on how to make sandwiches. I can just see Lennart Prytz perched on a snow-capped peak playing a zither — he is the only living zither player in the world! The Eskimos are doing well in learning German, for Marjorie Darr is their teacher. The weasels were having a hard time until Dorothy Spry invented a new incubator for baby weasels.

Al: Jimmy Marohn's musical ability has transformed him from the sweet curly-haired boy we knew into a cynical snake-charmer in India. In India we find Kurt Simon who has astounded the world by presenting a most useful talk on "The Utilization of the Pig's Squeal in the Packing Industry."

Janet: Syncopation! wa-wa-bo-da! 'Tis the well-known voice of Allen Pullin. Coon-Sanders are slowly being replaced! and if you want your fortune told, go to the red-haired fortune teller, Marjorie Stech.

Muriel: Among the city apple salesmen we find John Bednar, Leonard Cieciora, Clarence Gruszynski, Edwin Kalczynski, William Kronwitter, and Edmund Nowicki. There is keen competition amongst thy ranks boys, may the apple business prosper! George Barlas is no longer with them for he is professor of English in Edwardsburg.

Catherine: Well, so Nellie Sofan has succeeded Miss Oakley as librarian! Art Crum is pretty far from here. He is busily engaged in the South Sea Islands feeding the song-birds. A lot of our class seems to have stayed in South Bend. Here's Victor Barzykowski, a caretaker at Leeper Park, and Richard Davis is a famous ice-man. Emery Hirschler is seen hoeing a row of turnips in Bendix's front yard.

Margaret: I see Ethelyne Hall has received a patent on a new reducing machine. Who would ever have guessed that Barbara Hartman and Alice Hathaway would own an art shop. Margaret Hunsberger plays the violin in the Latin Quarter in Paris. She lives with Emma Kish who is an outstanding artist there. Wanda Olczak lives near them and is the famous Latin translator.

Muriel: Velma Poczik seems to have succeeded Miss Montgomery as Dean of Girls. The other day I saw Bernice Smet and Muriel Staffner, who are maids at the Oliver Hotel. When I went into Wyman's today, I saw Florence Wroblewski and Gizella Wukovits clerking there.

Richard: Hot dog! Irene Vargo, Lois Whiteman, and Laura Williams have an information bureau on St. Mary's girls. I just saw Tommy Trusty playing volley-ball. You know she is the outstanding volley-ball player in the sport world. I hear Rosa Talley is the belle of New Orleans.

Marshall: Henry Rafinski is a broker in a bank at Monte Carlo. Jeanette Devine has become a nun in Paris. The other night I went to the popular show, "The World", directed by Thelma Hafstrom, and featuring, Betty Fretz, Sara Goldberg, and Clara Gooley as the three Graces.

Muriel: While I was in New York the other day, I met William McCombs. He took me to see his warship, and who should be working as his butler but Earl Hounshell. Burr Kring is William's chimney-sweep. The day before they found Walter McCready hidden away as a stowaway.

Al: Who would have thought that Ferdinand Kurdys would have become champion flag-pole sitter! Or that Dale Lindsey had entered the tree sitting profession. Read in the paper the other day that Earl McManus and Stanley Makowski had drawn up a test that supersedes the Brown Intelligence Tests.

Catherine: Following in the footsteps of the other Knights, I guess William McKnight has become prominent in the Automobile Industry. Not to be outdone Joseph Voros, has become a successful toothpaste manufacturer. These two industries are widely advertised over William Paul's broadcasting station B-L-A-H.

Janet: Well, you don't know about all the successful business folks of our class. Listen to this. Leslie Molnar makes Rockingless Rocking-chairs, and Rudolph Nyari has advanced to a "book seller". But I think Thaddeus Jozwack is to be highly complimented in the profession he has chosen — that of fly-catcher in Edmund Hosinski's bakery.

Margaret: I'm not surprised about Anthony Paidle though. You know he's the compiler of the 1945 World Almanac. He told me that Ted Neizgodski has been ordained archbishop. By the way do you remember those brawny boys, Emil Pertics and Casimer Kanczuzewski? They are the chief piano movers at the Palace.

Richard: What a job! Casmier Wieczorak and Walter Wojtysiak tend the cubs at Lincoln Park. That may be hard, but here's something harder — Andrew Wroblewski is a janitor at South Bend High School. Say you ought to hear two speakers I heard last night. Florence Bechert spoke on "Woman's Rights", and after her John Walsh spoke. He's the greatest anti-prohibitionist.

Bernice: Every morning promptly at seven I'm awakened by that whistle at Studebakers. Last week I found out that it is Kenneth Smous who operated it. There is one person's occupation I admire immensely, because it is so beautiful, that is Ethel Boberg's daily job of blowing soap bubbles.

Leonard: Say you girls, here's a beauty tip: Theresa Bourgon has invented a new hair dye — good for at least three washings. How I envy Dorothy Coleman; She has a job at the Five and Ten candy counter. On my way into South Bend today I passed Muessel Jr. High and saw Florence DeBates, she is the playground instructor there. A little farther on I met Margaret Cook cheerfully accompanying a gas-reader on her route.

Class Will

We the Graduating Class of June, 1931, in due consideration of the fact that we are about to take leave of this world of Elementary Learning and pass on into the awing land of Experience, do bequeath to the incoming Senior A Class all the responsibilities and dignities that are attached to such a position. There are two privileges that a Senior A is proud to claim: those of sitting in the front row in assembly and taking finals a week before the rest of the school. Leaving material bequeaths, we hand down to you our unusual ability to cooperate in all projects, of which you may be justly proud.

It is with regret that we must relinquish these cherished possessions, but, as we must lay them aside for greater things, we feel that you are most capable of carrying on in our absence. The afore mentioned bequeaths may be retained only if you, the new Senior A's, practice always our school motto, "I will keep faith."

In addition to these bequeaths, there are various and sundry trifles which individuals have seen fit to dispose of and which are here presented.

I, Ruth Jackson, do bequeath to Bertille Hindelang all the trials and tribulations of sponsoring a Senior A group.

To Margaret Small, do I, Guy McMichael, bequeath the Senior A Presidency. Good Luck, Marg. the Farewell Address is an awful job.

We, George Basker and George Turner, will our justified conceit to Bill Oare and Fred Noble.

To Peg Harris do I, Muriel Stapp bequeath my ability to talk long, fast, and furious, and not say anything.

I, Bob Fisher, will my last year's growth to James Beebe.

I, Angela Bolke, bequeath my love for athletes to Adeline Wunsch.

I, Edmund Ruscowski, bequeath my baritone voice to Bob Schwarz.

To Jay Lee, do I, Carl Wray, bequeath my wrestling ability.

I, Mary Jane Hastings, will my eccentric ears to Joe Donahue.

I, Jean Bennett, bequeath my personality to Irene De View.

I, Liz Osborne, bequeath my frivolous nature to Mary Liz Pool.

I, Gert Smith, will my clever wise-cracking to Virginia Lee.

I, Sophia Gorka, bequeath my brutal manner to Mary Ann Frash.

I, Jerome Vogel will my excuse for hanging around Peterson Printing Company to the next Business Manager of The Interlude.

I, Margaret Jambor, will my ability in sewing to Geraldine Benson. It will be cheaper for Jack to have you make your own clothes, Jerry.

I, Bill Crable, will my list of phone numbers to Ned Campbell. Don't forget the blond, Ned!

I, Adele Grabarczyk, will my interpretation of Isben to the next Modern Drama Class. I hope you get a better grade than I did.

To "Red" Fulkerson "the school's favorite" do I, Freda Lovitt, bequeath my position as trombone player in the orchestra.

To Elizabeth Koller, do I, Fern Strickler, will my position in Blanchard's office. I hope you enjoy it, I did.

I, Bob Lee, will my unique style of dancing to Dick Maynard. You have a good start already, Dick.

To Thomas Grubb, do I, George Sibley, will my "cooky duster".

I, Madonna Morrow, will my extreme modesty to Don King Stephenson.

I, Ernest Greenwood, bequeath my car to Jack Lloyd. I'm sure it makes better time than yours and the special paint job is beautiful.

I, Dick Gardner, bequeath my football genius and my concrete cerebellum to a brother, Don Gardner.

To Elliot Cohn, do I, Bill Angus, will my way with women.

I, Bob Hoenk, will my scholarly look to Matt McInerny. You need it, Matt!

I, Milton Ries, bequeath my record of A's to the world famed Smith brothers.

I, Thomas Lizzi, will my ability to say what I mean to Jerry Claeys. "Yes, George".

I, Ginny Mann, bequeath my athletic ability to Rosamond Seebirt.

I, Margaret McCowan, will my quiet and demure manner to Roberta Wilson.

I, Genevieve Milosierny, will my ability to win the teacher's confidence at first sight to Joe Eubanks.

To Al Hans, do I, Maxine Piowaty, bequeath my private table and five chairs in the Arcadia.

I, Margaret Gish, will my aristocratic nose and long tresses to Martha Hammerschmidt.

I, Virginia Doran, will my love of sociology to anyone who must suffer as I did.

Dot Hutchinson wills her perpetual grin to Miss Keller. Use Pepsodent, Miss Keller.

To Helen Burnfelt, do I, Chuck Marbaugh, bequeath my tactful way of getting kicked out of library.

I, Lyle Jenkins, will my pink slips to Jane Elliot. They make good book marks, Jane.

I, Dick Cowling, will my ability to act silly at serious times to Bob Butzbach.

I, Les Borough, bequeath my lovely hair to the lucky person who applies first.

I, Thaddeus Zabick, will my love for sleeping in class to Doris Ward.

We, Wardell Pomeroy and Francis Hopkins, will our corner of the library to Marge Fothergill and Stan Whitworth!

My demureness in class do I, Ann Burke, bequeath to Peggy Reed.

I, Thelma Sanner, bequeath my unusual coiffure to Sally Cox. Your hair will be long enough in a few months.

I, Sylvia Steiner, will to Winnie Flood my masculine walk. Flat heeled oxfords help, Winnie!

I, Ed Esch, bequeath to Effie Weissbrodt my distinguished aloofness.

I, Madeline Matfield, will my N. D. student to Jean Bartley.

President's Farewell Address

By GUY McMICHAEL

We are approaching the culmination of three years of interesting and profitable training in our lives. When we part tonight, let us carry with us into whatever walk of life we may enter, the happy memories of those three short years. Let us continue in the fine, wholesome, spirit which we have created within the halls of our Alma Mater.

As a class, we have reached high pinnacles of success chiefly through unselfishness co-operation, ambitious activities, and the fostering of high ideals. May we continue to build on this firm foundation through the coming years.

It has been an honor and a privilege to be president of such a loyal and successful class and I trust it may be said that my duties have been performed satisfactorily.

In behalf of the class, I wish to express gratitude to those who have made graduation possible. Our principal and teachers have imported to us, not only book knowledge, but also the essentials of true manhood and womanhood. Our parents have planned and sacrificed that we might attain the goal that we have reached tonight. We can express our true appreciation to them, not merely by words, but by the character and success of the lives we lead in the years to come.

To me it seems that there never has or never will be another class such as ours and I know that in graduating from such a respected and honored institution as we do, we shall always regard its name as a sacred thing.

In the years to come, we cannot hope for the wide and easy path that we have trod during our high school days for we are on the bottom rung of a tall ladder and the steps are far between. Let us not look down but ever upward.

I regret the sorrow of our parting and I cannot force myself to say goodbye, for the closeness of our friendship still persists. Though our many happy hours are drawing to a close, I cannot say farewell but rather — until we meet again.

You Can Make Success a Habit!

"If you will make up your mind now always to finish every job you start, you will make success a habit."

These words are never truer than in the saving of money. Because successful saving is a habit — a mighty GOOD habit. It's the fellow who keeps everlastingly at it that reaches his goal. Decide what you want, what it costs, and then "finish the job."
